SERIES DESCRIPTION:

Kerides the Thinker was a mystery series set in Alexandria, Egypt in approximately 276 B. C. The series central characters were Kerides, a young Greek scholar who comes to Alexandria on the recommendation of his teacher and Adrea, an outspoken, young former slave girl who gained her freedom when her owner was executed for murder. The young man's penchant for observation and logical thinking, enabled him to solve crimes, particularly murders and gained him the attention and patronage of Pharaoh's Grand Vizier and the commander of the Palace Guard.

In a 2010 interview, the series co-creator, Iain McLaughlin, describes Kerides the Thinker as, "It's meant to have a bit of a Third Man vibe - lots of fun and flirting as well as horrible murders."

The character of Erimem who appears in the episode "Return of the Queen," originally appeared in the "The Eye of the Scorpion" episode of The Big Finish Productions of the audio version of the Doctor Who series.
