SERIES DESCRIPTION:

O'Hara was a crime drama series that had an initial 26 episode run in 1951 on the 14 station Columbia Pacific Network (CBS West Coast). The series was later resurrected for broadcast on the entire CBS network in two short, separate runs during 1956.

The main character was O'Hara, a foreign correspondent, who was based in Hong Kong. While the O'Hara character was ostensibly a reporter, he usually became involved in investigating and solving some crime. O'Hara was essentially a detective in reporter's clothing. The O'Hara character also functioned as the narrator.

During the April through September, 1951 twenty-six episode CBS West Coast run and the late Spring – early Summer portion of the 1956 run over the entire CBS network (an unaired audition show and 12 broadcasts ), Jack Moyles starred as O'Hara. In the early 1956 Fall run, Stacy Harris played the title character.

Origins and Progeny

(Which appeared in a somewhat different format as the article "Rocky Goes East" by Stewart Wright in the June, 2015 issue of Radio Recall, the Newsletter of Metro Washington Old Time Radio Club.)

Many Old-Time Radio fans are familiar with one of the most popular series ever to run on the CBS West Coast Radio Network: the adventure series Rocky Jordan which ran with breaks from October 31, 1948 through June 26, 1953. (The Rocky Jordan character first came to the airwaves in 1945 on that regional network in a series called A Man Named Jordan which ran from early January, 1945 through August 1, 1948.) This pair of series were more than loosely based on the classic Humphrey Bogart motion picture: Casablanca. Jack Moyles played Rocky Jordan from 1945-50 and 1952-53. In an ill-advised attempt to supply the series with "Star Power" for a Summer, 1951 run on the entire CBS network, George Raft was brought in to play Jordan. Moyles' portrayal of Jordan is usually considered superior to that of Raft's.

However, most Old-Time Radio fans and collectors are probably not aware that another series, O'Hara, could trace its roots to Rocky Jordan. It's not surprising as only two O'Hara broadcasts are in circulation; one each from the April through September, 1951 twenty-six episode CBS West Coast run and from the 1956 run of an unaired audition show and 12 broadcasts over the entire CBS network. Jack Moyles starred as O'Hara in all but the last five episodes which were aired in October, 1956.

O'Hara and the Jordan series were of the so-called "amateur detective" or "unlicensed private investigator" variety. It was a common way of putting a different twist on the basic private detective theme, a favorite radio genre. Each main character had a stated, non-investigative occupation: Jordan was a café owner and O'Hara was an international correspondent. However, they were primarily involved with solving mysteries and crimes. Both O'Hara and Jordan pass the Raymond Chandler test: "trouble" was definitely their "real" business.

The series and their title characters had many similarities. Both O'Hara and Jordan also performed as the narrator for their respective series. Both lead characters were Americans earning their livings in an exotic overseas locales: O'Hara's Hong Kong was substituted for Jordan's Cairo. The story lines for many episodes of both series dealt with crime or international intrigue and were frequently filled with colorful characters. In fact, the initial two O'Hara episodes, "Kowloon Hijack" and "The Marked Man" were reused scripts that had been initially aired in 1949 as "The Big Heist" and "The De Marco Affair" respectively on Rocky Jordan. (These scripts would be reused again under their 1949 titles when Rocky Jordan returned to the CBS West Coast airwaves in 1952-53.)

Also, both Jordan and O'Hara maintained a sometimes tenuous, but respectful relationship with local senior police officials. In O'Hara's case, it was with Commissioner Sydney Phelps of the Hong Kong Constabulary. In Jordan's, it was with Captain Sam Saabya of the Cairo Police. The private conversations between the title characters and these senior law enforcement agents was one of each series' strongest plot devices; these conversations drew the audience into the world of the main characters. Several episodes of O'Hara conclude with the correspondent having Tea with Commissioner Phelps. Likewise, while more than a few episodes of Rocky Jordan ended with Rocky having Egyptian Coffee with Captain Saabya. The characters usually conversed about various aspects of the episode's case and life in general.

The O'Hara theme music, used to help set a Far Eastern mood for the series, came from another Humphrey Bogart adventure movie: the popular 1944 motion picture "To Have and Have Not." It was an instrumental version of the song "Hong Kong Blues" by song writer/composer Hoagy Carmichael, who also performed it in that motion picture.

O'Hara was not Moyles' only radio endeavour as a foreign correspondent. In 1953 Moyles played Brad Douglas, a correspondent for the New York World newspaper in the Armed Forces Radio and Television Service produced series: Douglas of The World.

NEWSPAPER RADIO PROGRAMMING LISTINGS CAUSE CONFUSION:

Errors in Newspaper Radio Programming Listings have caused considerable confusion regarding both the 1951 and 1956 runs of O'Hara.

It is wise to remember that Newspaper Radio Programming Listings are Secondary Sources; they were derived from information supplied by the radio networks. Newspaper Radio Programming Listings are a thumbnail sketch of What Was Scheduled to be Aired and Not Always What Was Actually Aired. In many cases, Newspaper Radio Listings normally did not list Episode Titles, they usually only listed Scheduled Air Date and Time and Series Name.

I have found through experience that Newspaper Radio Listings at the beginning and ending of a series' run or when the series changed day and/or timeslot can be inaccurate. Networks usually sent copy on a series to newspapers weeks in advance of the broadcast of the premiere episode and subsequent episodes. Sometimes the networks changed broadcast day and/or timeslot for a series on short notice and the newspapers either didn't receive the change information or were unable to publish it in time. Series were often cancelled on short notice and sometimes Newspaper Radio Listings would continue to appear for a series that was already off the air.

These preceding types of errors in newspapers were quite common occurrences. Sometimes Networks were late in getting programming change information to the newspapers. Other times the newspapers didn't get the change information to those responsible for composing the page and setting the type. Sometimes typographical errors were not caught.

The newspapers were quite aware that their Radio Programming Listings were subject to last-minutes changes and might contain errors. Some newspapers included disclaimers in their Listings. As Rocky Jordan was primarily a West Coast regional radio series, here are disclaimers from three California newspapers:

"The following programs are compiled from reports provided by the broadcasters. No responsibility assumed for last-minute changes which are sometimes made. "
(The Long Beach Press Telegram.)

and

"Program information is supplied by the stations. The Review takes no responsibility for changes."
(The Hayward Daily Review.)

"Radio programs listed below are compiled from radio station information. The Gazette assumes no responsibility for errors caused by last minute changes, but endeavors to give the latest log listings available at press time."

(The Berkeley Daily Gazette.)

Newspaper Radio Programming Listings can be deceiving. It is unwise to rely on them as a Sole Source of information.

For the compilation of episode titles and broadcast dates and times, this broadcast log relies mainly on series-specific Primary Sources

the two existing broadcasts,

CBS episode scripts,

and

internal network documentation.

The printed Primary Sources were actually viewed by this broadcast log compiler during two trips to the archive where these materials reside. The two broadcast episodes in circulation were listened to and compared to the scripts. Then the information from these Primary Sources was compared to period Newspaper Radio Programming Listings and all conflicts were resolved.

The following problems with Newspaper Radio Programming Listings were encountered when I was compiling the O'Hara broadcast log.

When Did The 1951 Run Begin?

The Saturday, April 7, 1951 RADIO TODAY Newspaper Radio Programming Listing of the Los Angeles Times has O'Hara as airing at 9:30 P.M. The script for the episode and Radio Programming Listings of other newspapers have O'Hara airing at 9:35 P.M. after 5 minutes of news at the half hour. O'Hara continued in this time slot through June 30, 1951.

When Did The 1951 Run End? Four Non-Existent Episodes.

There is substantial confusion in Newspaper Radio Programming Listings as to when O'Hara ended its 1951 run. The Los Angeles Times Radio Programming Listings had the series continuing through October 28, 1951. The Radio and Television Program Listings of the Long Beach Press-Telegram has the last O'Hara broadcast as airing on October 7, 1951. Other newspapers on the Pacific Coast varied to when O'Hara ended.

The scripts and network documentation for O'Hara have the series ending its 1951 run of 26 shows with the broadcast of September 30, 1951. CBS radio series of the time generally were programmed for blocks of 13 weeks. The network documentation indicates that the series was cancelled on short notice. My O'Hara broadcast log lists the 1951 run of the series as consisting of 26 episodes as opposed to 30 episodes claimed by some other broadcast log compilers.

1956 Run of Series. Two Non-Existent Episodes.

The Daily Radio Programming Listings of at least one newspaper, the Los Angeles Times, erroneously listed that O'Hara also aired on the CBS West Coast flagship station, KNX at 7:00 PM (PT) AFTER News on 07/08/1956 and 07/15/1956. The News broadcast would make the actual start time of O'Hara 7:05 PM. See below program listing graphics at 7:00 PM for KNX.

From L. A. Times – 07/08/1956

7:00	KFI—Opera

	KNX—FBI Peace & War

From L. A. Times – 07/15/1956

7:00	KFI—Opera
	KNX—News. O'Hara
	KFWB—News
	KHJ—Guy Lombardo
	KABC—News
	KFAC—Hi-Fi Concert
7:05	KFWB—Books & You
	KABC—Listening Post
	KNX—FBI Peace & War

Look at the above KNX programming listing graphics for 7:05 PM on those dates and you will see that FBI In Peace & War (a.k.a. The FBI In Peace & War) is listed. It is highly unlikely that CBS was able to have two 25-minute series broadcasting simultaneously on the same station!

Also, the Radio Programming Listings of several other newspapers have The FBI In Peace & War airing in O'Hara's previous time slot for 07/08/1956 and 07/15/1956.

The 07/08/1956 broadcast of The FBI In Peace & War exists. I have verified The FBI In Peace & War's West Coast 7:05 PM time slot on 07/15/1956 by consulting the script used for that broadcast.

The scripts I consulted for the 1956 run of the O'Hara series were in Bound Volumes that included additional documentation. This documentation conclusively proves that all 1956 O'Hara scripts are contained in those volumes; there were no scripts or broadcasts for the series on 07/08/1956 and 07/15/1956. O'Hara ended the first portion of its 1956 run with the broadcast of 07/01/1956 and did not return to the CBS airwaves until October 1, 1956.

The information from the previously mentioned sources has convinced me that there were no broadcasts of O'Hara on 07/08/1956 and 07/15/1956.

LOG:

The broadcast log is divided into sections with the day and time of broadcasts listed at the beginning of each section. All airing dates, times, and titles used in this broadcast log are from the series scripts and network documentation. See preceding section, NEWSPAPER RADIO PROGRAMMING LISTINGS CAUSE CONFUSION:, for resolution of conflicting Newspaper Radio Programming Listings information.

Note on Episode Numbers (EP):

The scripts for the episodes of the 1951 run of O'Hara were numbered.

The scripts for the seven episodes of the 1956 Moyles run of O'Hara were not numbered; however, the numerical progression of episodes is mentioned in the Opening of each broadcast.

The scripts for the five episodes of the later 1956 run starring Stacy Harris as O'Hara were numbered 1 through 5.

For this log, I have numbered the episodes of the 1956 run consecutively based on their order of airing starting at 001 and ending at 012.
